There is small evidence at hand to show that the President and his Cabinet are at loggerheads on the Civil-Service Reform question, or that between the Scylla of Mugwumpism and the Charybdis of the spoils system the Administration is parting seams and going to wreck. All this talk about serious disagreements and quarrels, Mr. Cleveland pulling one way, Mr. Manning another, Mr. Vilas another, Mr. Lamar still another, and Mr. Garlandloff on a tapgent of his own, and the whole Executive family in a turmoil, is strongly open to the suspicion of being unmitigated nonsense.

The Civil-Service Reform law is unquestionably an embarrassment to the politicians. The reform, of which the original idea was simply the suppression of old machine methods, has spread out, under the statute, to a disagreeable breadth. In short, it is a reform which has got away with the reformers, but being made into a law it will have to be got along with. It is, probably, no more obnoxious to Democrats than it would be to Republicans were the latter in power instead of the former. The Democrats were the more unfortunate, however, in being first to get caught in a trap of their own devising. There are those who believe that the law is the rock on which the Democratic party will split, but THE CRITIC cannot conceive such a catastrophe as imminent Even if the Democratic House next winter should undertake to repeal the law, or emasculate it, or starve it to death, i doesn't follow that the party will break up in consequence. If Mr. Cleveland gives the country a good administration his party will hold together; and the little clashes and conflicts that occur now and then about this clerk's appointment or that clerk's removal, while furnishing the editors and correspondents with material for sharply flavored paragraphs, are scarcely to be taken as signs of an earth-

THE CITY PARK FENCES.

The subject of the removal of the high fences around the public parks in this city, as in all other progressive communities, is constantly attracting attention, and Colonel Wilson, the new Commissioner of Public Buildings and Grounds, has recently been made the subject of attack for his reported advocacy of the removal of the fences.

In justice to Colonel Wilson it must be said that he has not taken any position on this question.

There are no funds available for the removal of the fences, and it has been decided that authority from Congress is necessary to take this step; besides this, there is undoubtedly a great difference of Colonel Rockwell, a careful and pains taking student of all matters pertaining to the beauty and protection of the parks, strongly advocated the removal of the high fences, while so good a citizen as Mr. W. W. Corcoran opposed such action with equal earnestness

In the face of these facts, Colonel Wilson, just entering upon the duties of his responsible position, has seen no reason to take sides in the controversy, and has modestly assumed that his personal opinion about it is not an important considera-

He takes charge of the parks with the democratic and sound idea that they are public property; that their province is to give health, pleasure and rest to the peo-ple, and that the popular verdict rather than the dictum of an official should control their management. He will carefully study all questions pertaining to these much-prized and delightful reservations, and his action will always be in conformity with the wishes of those who have the best interests of the people and the parks at heart and in accordance with what seem to be the predominant and expressed wishes of those who have the best right to

Logan is going to oppose anybody's con-firmation simply for personal spite or in a mere spirit of captious antagonism to the Administration.

Bayard has quite a large family of child-ren. One of the daughters is the wife of Mr. Warren, a prominent lawyer of Bos-ton, Mass.—[Baltimore Sun. The Illinois Senator is a good deal of a partisan, and, sometimes, a very offen-sive one, but he has no high moral Princess Beatrice's Piano.

The grand piano made for the Princess Beatrice by Messrs, Brinsmead, to the order of Kemsington ladies, was presented to the Princess at Buckingham Palace on the 4th of July, when Mr. John Brinsmead attended to explain to her Royal Highness its mode of construction, which is of an entirely new and novel kind. The piano is in a black case, ornamented with gold. The sustaining petal enables the player to prolong the sound of one or more of the notes on the organ principle. The plano has so clastic a touch that all gradations from the most subdued whisper to the greatest fertirsimo passage can be accomplished with fine effect.—[London Times.] scruples against the spoils system. In fact, he rather likes it, and is credited with having a supreme contempt, no only for Republicans who stand in obsequious waiting for Democratic crumbs, but more especially for those who wan to crowd in and get a seat at the first

Were General Logan President once, he would, no doubt, give points in the distribution of patronage that would startle even the ghost of General Jackson the Sunday school teacher of a new scholar"Sheelen Miller, Miss," was the answer.
"Sheelen!" repeated the teacher, somewhat surprised: "lsn't that rather a queer name!"
"Yes, Miss; but before the revised version came out it wasn't so queer."
Then the teacher fell to thinking of spiritual matters.—"Merchant Traveller.

THE result of the interview held yester c'ay in a semi-official way by United States Treasurer Jordan, with a number of New York bankers, seems to have been that the banks of that city will advance gold to the Government, to the extent of $10,000,000 or $20,000,000, if necessary, or, what is the same thing, furnish their customers with gold instead of silver certificates for the payment of customs duties, in order to prevent a possible reduction of the gold in the Treasury below the legal reserve, and thereby necessitate a virtually silver basis of payments by the Government, Mr. Jordan informed the members of the Clearing-House Association that he did not come before them to make any such request, but simply to acquaint them with the nature of the situation, that they could take such action as it might seem to warrant, all with a view of tiding over the few months till Congress meets, when some remedial legislation may be expected. The New York banks now hold about $112,000,000 of gold, or sixty per cent, reserve, where only twenty-five per cent, is required, and are abundantly able to assist the Government. if it needs assistance, but the effect of ten-

The San Francisco Mint. Says the San Francisco correspondent of the New York Tribune:

"Judge Lawton, the new Mint Superin tendent, has been more than a week at his home in Alameda, yet he has escaped nearly all interviews and place-hunters. He has nearly two hundred offices in his gift, many of which are filled by women and none subject to civil service rules. He declares his appointment was a com-plete surprise, and was due to the fact that he was an old resident of Albany and a strong personal friend of Mr. Manintment to the nephew of Vice President Hendricks, who was the sole candidate for the place, and who regarded his ap-pointment as so certain that he had made frequent visits to the Mint, inspected its workings, decided on a desk and chair which suited him best, and even allowed several women friends to come here from distant parts of the State in order to be ready to take office when his credentials should arrive. To say that he was broken up' by Lawbn's appointment would be putting it mildly."

The Boy Had the Bulge. "No, my son," he replied, as he put on his hat, "you can't go to the circus," "But why, father?"

"Well, in the first place, I can't fool away my money on such things."
"Yes, but I have enough of my own."
"And in the next place it is a rough crowd, the sentiment is unhealthy, and no respectable persons can countenance such things:"
"But fath—"

"That's enough, sir! You can't go! I want you to enjoy yourself, but you must seek more respectable amusement." An hour later a curious thing happened in the circus tent, A boy climbed to the top flight of seats and sat down beside a top night of seats and sat down beside a man who had just finished a glass of lemonade and was lighting a cigar. He had his plug hat on the back of his head and seemed to be enjoying himself hugely. It was father and son. The father had one straight to the grounds from dinner and the boy had run away. They looked at each other for half a minute, and then the boy got in the first blow by whispering:

"Say, dad, if you won't lick me I won't tell ma you was here!"

The father nodded his head to the agree ment, and the great spectacular parade in the ring began.—[Detroit Free Press.
